Carmack could use his club in this city for a toothpick, but the wolf won't need one as it has not dined yet.

The Bristol Herald-Courier is not more willing, but it is a more ardent and persistent Carmack liar than the Knoxville Sentinel.

What Hon. W. T. Crotzer does for a. e. folk in Wednesday's Nashville American will dismiss his libel suit before the jury of the people.

Thirteen men gathered at the court house in this city last Thursday night and called themselves a Carmack club. That's not a respectable splinter.

The statement is made in the Bristol Herald-Courier that an enthusiastic meeting of the Carmack club was held at Jonesboro last Saturday, and that the meeting was presided over by President Guinn. The truth is, there was not a Carmack man present from an outside district and no attempt was made to have a meeting. President Guinn was on hand, to be sure, but alone and forlorn.

The county republican executive committee met last Saturday and endorsed the candidacy of A. S. Hartsell for sheriff but J. I. Hawkins continues in the race.

The Bristol Herald-Courier was never more mistaken in its life than when it says Patterson forced himself upon the democratic party once but will not be able to do so a second time. The truth is, the democrats forced John I. Cox out of his way and will lay Carmack aside with equal determination. Democracy is not in a mood to be trifled with in Tennessee.

We have a high regard for Hon. W. W. Faw, but must be excused from betting all our wealth upon his political forecasts. He says Carmack is a sure winner and will carry a large slice of Middle and West Tennessee. It will be remembered that Faw was equally as sure Carmack would defeat Taylor and that Cox would defeat Patterson. His political horoscope is inverted.

When the sub-committee proposed to give Senator Carmack two members of the committee of three to receive county returns in each alternate county, that was too fair for his man, Hartford, and he voted against it. The resolution carried and under it Carmack gets two members in this county. The committee is D. M. Guinn, E. B. Hensley for Carmack, and J. S. Pritchett for Patterson.

GROVER CLEVELAND DEAD.
Hon. Grover Cleveland, one of America's greatest citizens, the only democrat who has been elected president since the civil war, died at his home at Princeton, N. J., Wednesday morning at 8:40 o'clock from heart failure superinduced by stomach and kidney troubles of long standing. Peace to the ashes of the noblest Roman of them all.

We offer one hundred dollars reward for any case of catarrh that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. F. J. CHESNEY & CO., Toledo, O. We have understood have known F. J. Chesney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by him.

Demagogy Rampant.

And so Charlie Miller makes an affidavit that Patterson asked him to use his influence to get his veto of the Pendleton bill sustained.

Miller says this occurred in the presence of the Hon. Thomas M. Scruggs the evening before Patterson signed the bill.

This Carmack urges as a bill of attainder against Patterson, under which bill he wants to convict him of high treason to state-wide prohibition.

But Patterson did sign the Pendleton bill.

Whether Patterson wanted to sign it or did not want to sign it ought not to be an issue in the campaign.

A man ought to stand on his record. Patterson is trying to run on his record, but Carmack, knowing that he can not make any turoads on his record, always keeps out of it.

What difference does it make whether Patterson liked or disliked to sign the Pendleton bill? He signed it. It is a law, made so by the governor's signature.

Patterson may have changed his mind fifteen minutes before he signed the bill, and this should relieve him of all criticism from Carmack. If he changed his mind he was doing what Carmack has done about every question that he has ever discussed. In every issue in this campaign brought forward by Carmack, he has been on both sides. To get on both sides he has to change his mind. That is why Carmack's mind is so badly fagged. He has worn it out changing it.

But suppose there was something in this indictment by Carmack more than demagogy and a means by which Carmack could open the sluice gates of his jaw.

Gov. Patterson denies that he has ever spoken to Charlie Miller about the Pendleton bill or the Lane-Foster bill. In fact, he says he has not spoken to Miller so several years. Mr. Miller has always bitterly opposed Gov. Patterson.

Mr. Miller says that Mr. Patterson asked him to use his influence to get his veto of the bill sustained. Patterson denies it. In a court of law Mr. Miller's bill of complaint against Mr. Patterson would fall to the ground.

Mr. Miller says this conversation took place in the presence of a third party, Judge Thomas M. Scruggs, of Memphis. Judge Scruggs says that he never saw Patterson and Miller in conversation the night before Patterson signed the Pendleton bill. Judge Scruggs says he never heard and conversatory, or heard of any conversation, between Miller and Patterson in the Maxwell House lobby, nor any other place.

Farther, Judge Scruggs says that, so far as Patterson asking Miller to see any person to get him to sustain the veto of the Pendleton bill the evening previous to his signing it, that Patterson told him forty-eight hours previous to his signing the Pendleton bill that he intended to sign it.

Now this was the chief issue in Carmack's speech the last few days. Yet on stuff like this he appeals to the democrats of Tennessee to turn down Patterson.

Again, Carmack, in order to speak of the great service he is doing the people of Tennessee by running for office, tells how, like Caesar, he thrust the senatorial crown away which was offered to him by the "machine" if he would not run for governor.

Carmack waved this rejected crown all over West Tennessee until finally it began to become frazzled. Then he became more specific and said that Wm. B. Brandon's son, said to a friend of his that if he (Carmack) would not run for governor, they would all get together and elect him to the senate. Carmack stated that, so far as he knew, Patterson was not a party to this offer. Of course Patterson was not a party to this offer, because Patterson, unlike Carmack, does not try to run the whole machinery of the democratic party when he is in office, for he it remembered that when Carmack was in office he spent most of his time trying to control the appointment of election commissioners in Shelby county, dabbling in ward politics, bolstering up the cause of local bolters, kicking up a disturbance in Maury county and lobbying around the legislature at Nashville.

Suppose that Brandon did say to his friend what Carmack states. What of it? Or suppose that Brandon's son said to Carmack's friend what he says he said, what of it? Brandon makes a statement in another column of this paper as to what he did in the matter. Granting that Carmack is telling the truth, and granting that Brandon is telling the truth, what business has Carmack trying to make this a campaign issue?

The fact is, if Carmack did decline this senatorial crown, if he really fooled himself into a belief of what he alleges is true, it was probably because he realized that the people of Tennessee though Brandon and other friends were acting in good faith, would not permit them to deliver the goods.

When this primary is over, the combined influence of Patterson, Brandon and even Bob Taylor could not convince the people of Tennessee that Carmack is a good enough democrat to represent the democracy of the democratic state of Tennessee in the senate of the United States.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

R. Horneck Gets Large Contract.

R. Horneck, the contractor, who is a well known figure in this city, has been awarded the contract for the building of a pike road from Jonesville, Va., to Ben Hur, on the Louisville and Nashville railway.

Married in Chattanooga.

The marriage of Miss Willie Broyles, of Jonesboro, to E. C. Foreman, of Ohio, was solemnized Thursday night at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. C. U. Foreman, on Houston street, Rev. E. E. Wiley officiating. The wedding was a quiet home affair, witnessed by the families of the contracting parties. The bride wore a wedding dress of white and carried a bouquet of white carnations and ferns. She is the daughter of Horton Broyles, of Jonesboro. The groom, recently of Marietta, O., is the brother of Charles U. Foreman, the architect. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Foreman will be at home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foreman, 214 Houston street.—Chattanooga Times.

Easy Confinement

If you have cause to fear the pains of childbirth, remember that they are due to weakness, or disease, of the woman's organs, and that healthy women do not suffer, like weak ones.

The specific, medicinal, vegetable ingredients, of which that famous, female medicine and womanly tonic

WINE OF CARDUI

WOMAN'S RELIEF
is composed, will build up the womanly organs to a healthy state and thus prevent needless suffering.

"Before my confinement," writes Mrs. Rose Schubart, of Mount, Colo., "I had such bearing-down pains I didn't know what to do. Cardui quickly relieved me. Some months later I had a fine 12-lb. baby, was sick only thirty minutes, and did not even have a doctor."
